

COMMUNITY IMPROVES ITSELF

The building pictured on the front page of last week's Herald was one of a group of buildings that had been condemned by Palm Beach County and as we mentioned served no useful purpose other than to make visitors to our city believe that all those horrible stories they heard about Belle Glade were true.

Today we are happy to report that through the efforts of an interested owner that group of buildings will soon be gone from the local scene. The picture on the right shows the same building as we saw it when we visited the area Monday. This is something for all Glades citizens to be proud of, and to recognize.

Critical Water Shortage Possible, FCD Reports

At a recent meeting of the Governing board of the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District Robert W. Padrick, chairman of the board reported the possibility of a very critical water situation due to lack of rainfall, is shaping up in Southern Florida.

Extreme measures of water conservation were urged by the FCD. Lake Okeechobee, the liquid heart of the 18-county water management agency, is currently about 22 inches lower than the regulation schedule, Ed Dail, executive director reported. He predicted that if rainfall is normal between now and June, the lake could recede to a level of 10 1/2 feet (above sea level).

One year ago the lake level was 14.9 feet or only about six inches below schedule, and a serious drought developed last spring. The water shortage that is now predicted points up the need for the new $60 million project unveiled in November by the Army Corps of Engineers, Padrick said. That plan calls for the storage of four feet more water in Lake Okeechobee, plus improved canals to distribute the water in South Florida.

Many people from communities surrounding the lake are opposed to the project, citing the effects it will have on existing facilities on the lake shore. Of course with the economy of the area so dependent on water it is impossible at this time to know whether the project will become a reality.

This was the end of the track for eight freight cars of an FEC train that derailed between Belle Glade and Pahokee Sunday. Work crews are still at the scene clearing wreckage and repairing tracks torn up in the accident.

FEC Freight Cars Derailed

The derailment of eight FEC freight cars Sunday containing some 420 tons of raw sugar temporarily blocked the tracks between Belle Glade and Pahokee. The cars were derailed at a switch just south of Morgan Road west, about four miles south of here.

None of the raw sugar was lost according to R. E. Hotard, commercial agent for the FEC.

Although none of the sugar was lost the contents of the cars had to be transferred to other box cars for shipment. The clearing of the wrecked cars, and the construction of the temporary track around the wreck site is expected to take several days.

The possibility of sabotage was discounted by Capt. Claude A. Tindall of the sheriff's office.

Body Found in Cooler

The body of James G. Boyd, 44, of 109 SW Ave. B, was found inside a portable vacuum cooling tube at Gresham & Sons Produce Packinghouse, 835 SW 9th St. Boyd was apparently locked in side the cooler when another worker closed the door.

A spokesman for the produce concern said Boyd would have had no reason to enter the cylinder, as his work was inside the plant. After the metal door at the rear of the portable plant is closed, all of the air is withdrawn from the tank, forming a vacuum, which takes moisture from the produce.

When the produce has been inside for about 30 minutes, the temperature is reduced to freezing. The extreme pressure possibly caused death by suffocation, officials said. Local physicians have requested and autopsy be performed by county medical examiner Dr. Hugh Dorch, Jr.

Survivors include one brother, Thomas L. Boyd of Hopkinsville, Kentucky. Remains will be forwarded to Hopkinsville, Kentucky where services and interment will take place at a later date.

Allies And Cost-Cutting

As the outlook for the Vietnam war in 1968 is continued heavy fighting, costing huge sums to the American taxpayer, it is essential that the United States find new ways of financing defense expenditures in regions other than the Far East. One way to do this is to make better use of existing facilities and to develop new ties with other anti-communist states.

In this connection, Americans have to consider the defense problems arising in the Indian Ocean as a result of growing Soviet sea power. The Soviet Union, long considered a land power exclusively, today is turning to the sea. It has a big naval task force in the Mediterranean and has even greater naval ambitions in the Persian Gulf and Indian Ocean areas. Behind the Soviet moves to the sea is a desire to manipulate world commerce, to capture control of the oil resources of the Middle East and to dominate Africa.

The United States cannot afford to ignore Soviet communism's power drives in these areas. Yet the question arises: where will the U. S. find the financial resources to take new military commitments in the Indian Ocean and adjacent areas of Africa threatened by communist pressures?

The answer to this question may lie in making better use of diplomacy and in accepting friendship that has been offered and rejected in the past. A case in point is the willingness of the Republic of South Africa, a powerful anti-communist nation, to assume burdens of defense in the Indian Ocean area.

With a strong economy and a currency based on gold, South Africa is in a position to devote extensive resources to the curbing of communism in and around Africa. With the long traditions of the British and Dutch — two great seafaring people behind them, the South Africans have the know-how to develop a sizeable fleet to deter communist ambitions in the Indian Ocean area.

Yet the United States has not taken advantage of the offer of South African friendship. Failure to take advantage of it already has cost the American people a lot of money. Ironically, though South Africa is staunchly anti-communist, the U. S. government refuses to sell military equipment to the Republic. This refusal is all the more absurd considering the fact that the administration's insistence that the U. S. should trade with the communist countries of Eastern Europe and "build bridges" to those violently anti-American nations.

Britain's socialist government, which has brought England to the door of economic ruin, likewise persists in refusing to sell warships and jets to South Africa although Englishmen need the jobs the device contracts would produce.

Happily, even some Labor ministers now recognize the wisdom of renewed arms sales. It is hoped that the U. S. government will move in this direction in 1968.

Failure to use South Africa as an anti-communist bulwark may drive that country into a neutralist stance, a posture the U. S. can politically ill afford. Gen. De Gaulle is eager to work the South Africans and to sell them arms.

The whole fanatical crusade against South Africa, because it won't bow to the winds of barbarism and communism blowing over the African continent, has a high dollar and cents cost to the American people. For years, the U. S. has shouldered an increasingly large share of the burden of Western defense against communism. U. S. expenditures have to be reduced to protect the dollar. One of the ways to reduce those expenditures overseas is to find other countries that have the courage and the financial means to work as real allies in the global struggle for freedom and peace in the household.

Although other goods were given, the most often recurring comments are closely related to the nature of local advertising. The excuses were not valid in terms of local prices or products available.

However, what is important is that people thought they had sound reasons for buying out-of-town. The shoppers knew, as early as a month or two before local retailers began Christmas advertising.

2. Presumption that prices as advertised in regional centers would be lower than non-advertised local prices.

3. Assurance that specific prices desired would be available.

4. Hope for greater variety in selection.

5. Excuse to get out of town.

6. Trip made for reasons and shopping was done incidentally.

The airman's view of shopping from catalog and mail order newspapers advertising.

8. Lack of information about the U. S. government's policy of refusing to sell military equipment to the Republic. This refusal is all the more absurd considering the fact that the administration's insistence that the U. S. should trade with the communist countries of Eastern Europe and "build bridges" to those violently anti-American nations.

Too Late to Classify

By Russell Kay

Everybody wants more money, school teachers, policemen, firemen, nurses, garbage collectors and in the face of steadily rising living costs together with the steadily shrinking value of the dollar, indicates that they are more than justified in their demands.

Thousands of retired people who scrimped and saved for old age are not finding that the dollars they saved are not sufficient to meet their needs. Widows are finding that the insurance their thoughtful husbands provided falls far short in meeting the cost of living today.

The family budget, like the national budget is a way out of balance, but unfortunately the family budget cannot borrow the money he needs nor can he tax his neighbor for funds to pay his bills.

While the bright economists tell us we have nothing to worry about, the national economy is booming, unemployment is lower than it has ever been and the goose hangs high, the humble citizen finds their philosophy hard to understand. His taxes continue to mount — city, state and federal. He used to mail a letter for two cents now he is called upon to pay six cents for the same service and is informed in the red. (Postal employees have to eat too!)

Political leaders and their college professor economics contend that we can spend our money for prosperity and the thought of curtailed government expenditures is ridiculous. We must spend more than we can afford to keep the economy booming. What difference does it make if the national budget is a few billion dollars out of balance, since it is just money we owe ourselves.

It appears that the President, his advisors and Congress still feel that the only road to national prosperity is to spend and spend and spend, to borrow and borrow and borrow.

Uncle Dan from Doolie Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Most of the season at the country store Saturday night was took up with how to make a cherry pie. Ordinary, the fellow who had conversation of items up to their old lady, but the storekeeper had got a memorandum from the Food and Drug Administration through the Department of Health, Education and Welfare advising of the new requirements for Government approved cherry pie.

On account of most of your readers, Mister Editor, probably buys a cherry pie now and then, I borrowed this Government memorandum for my little piece this week. I don't know how much it cost the taxpayers to get out this information on cherry pie, but I would guess around $20,000 mark. I'll skip the first half of the memorandum and just put down the second half so's the women folks can be safe and sure in this matter.

"Subsection (B): The number of cherries per ounce of a pie, as required in paragraphs (A) (1) of this section is determined as follows: Remove the filling and cherries from the pie and distribute evenly over the surface of a 12-inch diameter U. S. No. 8 sieve (0.094-inch opening) stacked on a U. S. No. 20 sieve. Wash the cherries and cherry fragments from adhering material with a gentle water spray. Drain the cherry contents on the No. 8 sieve for two minutes in an inclined position (15-30 degree slope). Do not discard the contents of No. 20 sieve. Transfer the whole cherries to a pan and determine the weight of all whole cherries. Count the whole cherries and calculate the average weight per whole cherry. Collect the cherry fragments from both the No. 8 and No. 20 sieves. Weigh the cherry fragments and calculate the number of cherry fragments based on the average weight per whole cherry equivalent to the total number of the cherries in the pie. Calculate the number of cherries per ounce of cherries in the pie. If the total is less than 2.7 cherries per ounce it does not qualify as cherry pie under the Food and Drug Administration."

Clew Webster of the Great Society claimed this was proof our Government cared about us and was looking after our interests. Ed Doolittle was disagreed with Clem, said he didn't prove nothing only got us a heap of folks with their pie in the tax bucket that couldn't find nothing else to do. And I couldn't care less if they were requiring 2.7 cherries per ounce or 7.2 per ounce. But I was a little disturbed to see where our Government had given the University of Florida a grant of $149,000 to teach mothers how to play with their young'un. I'm afraid this will ruin the young'un. Yours truly, now and pay interest on top of interest.

While legend tells us that George Washington once threw a dollar across the Potomac, he would have a hard time doing it today for it is a lot harder to throw a quarter that far, — and the value of the dollar in buying power is rapidly reaching that amount.

While the war in Viet Nam may be necessary and the Great Society program a worth while effort, along with the usual congressional bungles, designed to benefit candidates for re-election, the average citizen who must pay the bill is beginning to wonder where it will all end, and which end of the stick he will be holding when the bottom drops out.

Before long a new group of political aspirants will be seeking your votes with promises of faster growth, and stable prices. Maybe if we make an effort to elect a few level-headed, conscientious men and women to public office it might help. Maybe if we were to concentrate on balancing the budget — local, state and national, — it would be a step in the right direction.

The name game . . .

If your name was Irving T. Gulpnschner you might be very sad and wonder what you did to deserve such a name. There are probably very few Mr. Gulpnschners in the world, but certainly those that do exist have a name that few people forget and when they write it down they try to spell it correctly.

Let's look at the other extreme suppose your name is John Jones, that's an easy name to remember and very easy to spell. Now what if your name was Thomas J. Heran would you think that was a difficult name for people to remember and spell, well it is.

You wouldn't believe the names that appear on correspondence addressed to me Thomas Heran, Tom Herron, Thomas J. Herne of course I don't mind too much when they only miss by one letter, in fact I think I'll award a trophy for coming that close.

What has happened to the thoughtful people who tried to spell names correctly before they addressed the letter, it seems they are gone forever. Of course the misspelling of names risks only slightly ahead of not remembering names and both are equally offensive.

How many times have you avoided someone because you couldn't think of his or her name, then after being caught standing there stuttering and stammering and finally introducing the person as Mr. or Mrs. "Guh" "Hum." Of course you feel foolish because you are foolish and the only one to blame is yourself.

It takes little time to try and find the correct spelling of a name, and if you meet someone on the street and have forgotten their name admit it, Say I'm sorry but your name has slipped my mind and let them repeat their name for you. A persons name is very important to them and I think we all should try harder to spell names correctly and remember them.

Juniors Sale Magazines

The annual magazine drive of the Junior Class was held last week. Reid Sanders of Curtis Circulation Company talked to the group on January 1.

Although Mr. Sanders told the readers, whistling, heckling and cat calling did not prevent the first day sales of $2,577. The gifts would not be extended throughout the day, which ended Tuesday, gifts were continued through the sale after the first day sale of $2,021. First day sales leader was Barbara Ward, who sold $129 worth of subscriptions during the first weekend.

Many changes have been made in the Curtis Plan over the past year. The Juniors have been asked to sell eight different combination orders. Last year only two combination orders were available.

No giant stuffed golden rams were offered to the first top sales people this year as they were offered to the Senior Class. Instead, students who sell a $25.00 in subscriptions get a cloth patch with a golden ram. Sanders offered many small "green" stuffed animals to reward students for high sales. Team and combination sales were as follows: team 1, Tommy Altman and Tommy Bryson; team 2, Brenda Buckner and Pat Burkett; team 3, Aggie Gressinger and Janis Chaney; team 4, Melissa Hill and Terry Lee; team 5, Jackie Kirchner and Debby Lane; team 6, Judy Nixon and Barbara Richmond; team 7, Paul White and Cathie Scheffer; team 8, Suzanne Wilkinson and James Winchester.

Rank Performs

Last Friday Jack Rank entertained the high school audience by presenting a one man performance of a Shakespearean play.

Rank has in his repertoire the plays, "The Merchant of Venice" and "The Taming of the Shrew." He portrays the characters in the play and does numerous costume changes without breaking the continuity of the play. The sound effects back up the performance in make it outstanding.

He has given over ten thousand performances all over America and has taught at the University of Nebraska. Eight Broadway plays are to his credit also.

The entire student body enjoyed the unique and educational approach that Rank used to present Shakespeare. The program was arranged by the Student Council Assemblies, Beta Club and T.A. sponsored the assembly.

Bobcats Beat Tigers

On Friday night, January 12, 1968 the Mighty Bobcats played host to the Dunbar Tigers of Fort Myers in Lake Shore's gym.

The game opened with the baby Bobcats ("B" team) adding points to the score board. Glen Lettingham, Charles O'Brien, George Terry, and Clifford Wiggins, backed up the scores, while Cotton Wise and Lamar Powell (alternating each other at guard position) man-handled the backboard and rebounds.

The mighty unpredictable Glen Lettingham scored 34 points to lead the baby Bobcats to a victory of 80-45.

After the baby Bobcats collected another victory, the Mighty Bobcats ("A" team) took over the court, although the Dunbar Tigers led during the first quarter and tied 32 at the end of the second quarter. The Bobcats still had faith in themselves.

After halftime the Bobcats entered the game scoring points in just about every corner of the gym. Joe Fason and Johnny Mack dribbled magnificently from the front of the court. Charles Walker and Bobby McCawthun rebounded and popped from the corners, not to mention Curtis Edwards popping from everywhere.

Showing great ability to play controlled basketball, our all time favorite, Charles Walker scored 15 points to lead our boys to a 75-57 victory.

Education Is Valuable

Education includes all the ways in which one person deliberately tries to influence the behavior of another person. Behavior may include knowledge, skills, habits, values, and attitudes. Formal education includes organized instruction given by teachers in such institutions as schools and universities. Informal education involves learning from people and agencies whose primary purpose is something other than organized instruction. These include the family and other social groups, as well as newspapers, television and movies.

The ability to think and to reason things out, rather than simply to rely on their guesses, logically is one important way in which human beings differ from animals. Schools stress learning activities that develop the power of reasoning. Studying and solving problems in a variety of subjects help students improve their reasoning ability.

Our present methods of education have been influenced by the way education has developed. In order to understand and improve our present educational system, we need to know how education began and how it has changed through the years!

Helpful Hints

Here are some tips, topics, questions and answers I hope you will find interesting.

PIZZA BREAD

When unexpected guest drop in, try this quick and easy recipe: cut any kind of bread that happens to be in the house into pieces, spread butter and mustard, horseradish or a hot sauce on the bread; add any kind of cheese that's on hand and sprinkle with paprika or oregano; and pop under the broiler for about three minutes. It's a hearty treat with your favorite beverage.

THE THREE C's

Q. I think that I have nice clothes but I never seem to look well dressed. How can I have that Calm, Cool and Collected look that some girls have instead of looking messy? A. You may have very nice clothes, but how well do you take care of them? Do you periodically go through your wardrobe to check them, buttons, snaps, spots, pressing and cleaning? How about accessories? Are your shoes polished and clean? Lingerie neat and in good condition? And most important of all do your clothes fit you well? Always check a full-length mirror before leaving home for a long, lengthy, last minute check. By doing this you will conquer the three C's which are the Cool, Calm, and Collected look.

Charles Walker Signs with A&M

Lake Shore's All-State end Charles Walker, who can not only catch the football but run with it, has signed a grant-in-aid with Florida A&M.

Walker, a 6-3, 195 pounder, played four years of football for the Bobcats, and finished his senior year as a first-team choice on the Herald's All-Area squad as well as the Class A All-State team.

"He can make it either as a flanker or tight end because of his running ability," says Lake Shore Coach Willie Irvin. There are a lot of boys who can catch everything you throw them, but not many who can go like Charles after they catch it.

As a Sophomore, Walker was a steady performer on an unbeaten Lake Shore team. But it was his junior year that he really blossomed and teamed with quarterback Charles Haynes to make Palm Beach County's deadliest pass-catching combo, leading the Bobcats to a 9-2 season.

"He's one of those consistent boys," Irvin says. "Each year he just gets better and better."

Har's off to Charles and congratulations from the Lake Shore Family.

LSH Joins FHSA

Lake Shore, the area's last remaining non-Florida High School Activities Association member, will soon join the group ranks.

The Nezo Florida Inter-scholastic Athletic Association, which now numbers only a few high schools, is due to meet with FHSA Executive Secretary Floyd Lay in Gainesville Saturday to discuss assimilation of the remaining schools by the FHSA.

But, Lake Shore Athletic Director Willie Irvin made it clear his school will be FHSA members next year no matter what the outcome of Saturday's meeting. "We'll join on our own if we have to," Irvin says.
